New & Good: New Board Members

Circles RVA's Board of Directors as individuals, and as a unified group, inspire and provide tools for Richmonders to move from surviving to thriving economically. The Circles model aims to break the cycle of poverty by focusing on building working relationships between people with different backgrounds.

We are very happy to present four new board members that were voted onto the Circles RVA board in January 2022.

Joel Blum, new Co-president:

"I have observed such sustained commitment from so many people within our CIRCLES family and I have seen people overcome obstacles and take positive steps towards accomplishing their goals. It is a privilege for me to be part of this effort."

Ivy Bell: "I have never been more proud of myself to go from a graduating leader to a board member. It's like seeing a rainbow while the sun is shining."

Lisa Specter-Dunaway: "I'm honored to join this group of dedicated individuals working to support the Leaders' in their pursuit of a better life for themselves and their families."

Walter Crenshaw: "I've loved the relationships I've built participating in Circles RVA and am looking forward to being to help even more as a member of the board."

Please join us in welcoming them to the Circles RVA board. Want to know more about our Board? Click here for a full list of Directors.

Appreciations: Circles RVA Resource Teams

These behind the scenes volunteers share specific skills/knowledge with our Circle Leaders and support our efforts. Areas of assistance often needed include resume or business plan development, making an application for a mortgage or a loan, legal or financial advice, jobs and education information or simply a contact in an agency or organization. Our once a month Big View night provides education and engagement around system barriers.

These teams contribute to the success of our Leaders and we want to give them a big shout out for all of their time and service to Circles.
